

The Open University of Sri Lanka

Short course in soil-less agricultural technology for urban gardening

Course offered and delivered by the Department of Botany, The Open University of Sri Lanka.

This course is designed to give the students an in-depth knowledge and practical skills related to soil-less agricultural systems for crop cultivation and to improve their ability to use pertinent methods for various vegetable crops.

Register Now!

No. of participants per batch :30

Registration open from 1st June 2023

2nd Intake : August 2023

Duration:30 hours (06 consecutive Weekends)

Course fee:Rs: 20,000

Course content

- Introduction to soil-less agriculture systems
- Water & nutrient management in soil-less agricultural techniques
- Nursery management
- Building up of greenhouses/mesh houses in a suitable garden area
- Urban agricultural systems
- Entrepreneurship for urban gardening
- SMART agricultural techniques

Delivery method

A combination of lectures, demonstrations and hands-on sessions

- All lectures will be conducted as on-line and practical and field visit as on-site.
- Medium: English and Sinhala

Benefits

- A certificate of successful completion of the short course
- An opportunity to apply the skills and knowledge obtained through this course to develop your own soil-less agricultural system

Contact:

Prof. Darshani Weerahewa

Department of Botany, Faculty of Natural Sciences, The Open University of Sri Lanka, P.O. Box 21, Nawala, Nugegoda (10250), Sri Lanka

Email: hlwee@ou.ac.lk

INQUIRIES:112881092 /071 8293206